EAST UNION CENTER SCHOOL

"The preservation of a free Government is the sole ground for encouraging the diffusion of knowledge and learning through the state. Not only was the system to be a public one, but it was meant to be a state-controlled, centrally administered organization", thus quoting from Article IX of the State Constitution of 1816.

Since the beginning of time, the purpose of education has been to learn about life and the meaning of that life, plus the method one should and can employ to live that life to the best of one's ability-- a goal which millions of people throughout history have aspired to, but comparatively few have fully attained.

Union Township was organized in 1847-- a segment of the western part of a then two-part county, made up of Harrison Township and Rockcreek Township. Land sold for $2.50 per acre and the only neighbors of those early settlers were the Miami Indians, which fortunately were a friendly people to the white invaders. The early settlers in Union township learned about the use of herbs for medicines, the edible wild plants, fruits, etc., but the desire for those early parents were that their children could be taught those skills that could produce a new generation knowledgeable of the ways of life and how to gather the best things from that life.

Consequently, in 1848, the first school was erected of logs and stood one mile south of Zanesville. "Old Zion School" as it was named, had as its first teacher, Abraham Beaber, who lived 3/4 mile south of the school.

Before the organization of Union Township, while Wells County was a two township county, the children in Wells County had the benefit of a circuit teacher, the first being Margaret Hatfield, who taught in the homes, spending one day and one night in each of the homes of that circuit.

Of the same type as the "Old Zion School" were the Ormsby School, Center School, and College Corners, all near Zanesville. These all were one room log buildings; pupils sat on wooden benches & the teacher taught them from the only book the township possessed. (I was unable to determine what that particular book was).

In 1851-52, John Kain started a school in the southern part of the township because he had a large family of boys and girls of school age and could not send them conveniently to any school then existing.

Teachers during the time of 1852 until in the 1920s took extra training at the Academy in Murray or at the Roanoke Seminary.

Buckeye School - 1976

By 1906 there were ten schools in Union Township, four brick or block ones and six frame buildings. This did not include the town of Zanesville. The total number of pupils was 573. By that time in these little humble buildings, it is reported that they were well supplied with "modern seats, blackboards, and other aides to the pupils". By that date, there were pumps at all school sites to eliminate the lugging of water from neighboring homes. The common tin cup or long handled dipper was used by teacher and pupils alike. Each school was also provided with separate rest room facilities, situated apart from the main building for sanitary reasons!

School terms were from 6-7 months per year. Wages of the average teacher during that period was $1.80 - $2.00 per day, and no discrimination was made between male or female, as to qualifications, with the exception that the female who married had to quit teaching. All equipment the teacher desired as helpful in the education of the pupils was furnished by the teacher.

There were handicaps-- lack of equipment, poor ventilation, inadequate heating from often smoking stoves, the unsanitary drinking and toilet facilities and extra short recitation periods, yet there were happy times, such as spelling bees, ciphering contests, box socials, debating matches, programs of local talent-- all were held in these little local school houses at night.

Time would prohibit us to dwell on those early years of our educational heritage as we have it today. But as we hurry on and take a hurried glance backward over our shoulders as we run on-- we would catch glimpses of little child and those not so little, trudging across field, down dusty or muddy roadways, across snow that covered the fence rows, carrying their cold lunches packed in baskets by families, or in individual little round tin pails; lard pails and molasses tins came in real handy for this. We might see them gathering in numbers as they neared the school as neighbor children joined. We could hear the chatter, laughter, singing, teasing, some quarrelling and all the tears that probably were shared by the "underdog" who could be the butt of cruel teasing. We would catch snatches of the short stemmed field flowers clutched in little hands to present to an admired teacher of whom the giver hoped to gain a pittance of recognition. As we look again, we would see some who drove their horse and buggy or rode in to school.

THE BELL SCHOOL

In 1904 Union Township High School was built! W.H. Kain was trustee,E.J. Daugherty, S.M. Caley and Jonathon Seaman served on the Advisory Board. This was to supply Union Township with its own high school, as previously those wanting a higher education needed to go to Bluffton, Ossian or some boarding school. What a giant step! A tie barn was erected for the convenience of having a place out of the weather to tie the horses which were used to carry the pupils and teachers.

Two graduates were produced in 1905; Eva Earl and Leon Newhouse. The year 1909 recorded no graduate and the year 1912, only one person, Iva Sink graduated. During early years, Union lost it's high school commission and students were transferred to Ossian or Markle.

The tie barn sat on the south end of Union's acreage. Owen R. Bangs (still living), beloved principal, held tight reign on more than the horses in that barn. I'm told lots of courting went on in there and nothing escaped his sharp eye.

Consolidation had its birth pangs during those early years as it was decided to centralize the total township school program. The little school houses relinquished its hold on the little groups and those pupils were integrated into the big, big central school, which was more properly called Union Center School.

Transportation was a problem, but as all problems have a way of finding solutions, the horse hack was brought into play. These were long, box-like carriages with bench like seat along each side and uniquely enough, they had a heater! This heater was a little stove complete with chimney protruding through the top. This was fired and lucky was the guy who sat near the stove! The motorized box-like hacks replaced those, but there were no heaters and sometimes those who rode the farthest nearly froze.

Progress speeds on as we catch glimpse after glimpse of new buses; in 1934 a new gym to replace the old barn, a new garage to house the buses, made from the bricks of the old one room schools; changes in curriculum, methods, and as we ran a boisterous course, the years spun by which can only be seen through the eyes of memory.

How often we recall the feverish search for knowledge and adventure in a multitude of words from the printed page.

When McNeely was principal, the students at times left their lunch buckets at home and ate soup, provided at school (1930's). Later, around 1940-41, Lucy Meyers was cook-janitor and the cafeteria began to take shape with the help of Mr. Frantz, who scrounged up some plates and utensils.

Union Center High School's largest graduating class was 26 in 1944; the smallest in 1912, with 1 graduate. The total number graduating from Union Center High School was 825. Some high schools of today number that in one year, but quality has been a much more substantial substance than the quantity of our people! Union Center High School has produced a wide spectrum of vocations -- educators, doctors of medicine, doctors of chiropractics, nurses, many in various branches of service to our country, artists, musicians, business persons, architects, social workers, lawyers, merchants, horticulturists, Peace Corps workers, State Congressman, professional athletes, funeral directors, ministers of the Gospel, some of America's best farmers, a host of homemakers, mothers, fathers, grandfathers and grandmothers and a variety of other vocational persons.

An interesting point I read and have observed recently is the seemingly innovative idea that children in upper grades could well serve as teacher's helpers to the slow learning student in lower classes. Strange-- this is the way it was done in the one-room school throughout those earlier years. Does history really repeat itself? In not all areas, of course, but some things that were good are still good today!

A note of sadness comes creeping over me as I glance briefly in this hurried run through history, as I see Ole Union High with its stark empty windows peering out upon the world about. It's sorta' sad it can't have a decent burial as we would any other living vital being who served its purpose. I'm also keeping my eye upon the two remaining one room schools in our township and keep hoping someone will restore them as mementos to our grandchildren and generations to come.

If we could tonight, we would say a hearty "Thank You" to those of other generations who gave so much that I could be a recepient of the fun, adventure and excitement of an education. We salute you as we remember at this bicentennial year of our great, the greatest nation in the world! ... Mrs. Helen Smith Levy ...

NOTES:

The high school program closed in 1962. High school and junior high students were transferred to Lancaster and Ossian, and the grade school remained at Union until the school's closing in May 1968. At this time, the grade school children were divided between Rockcreek, Lancaster and Ossian.

About 1964, a kindergarten was provided for Union Rockcreek students at Uniondale in Fuhrer's Garage. In 1968, it was closed and Rockcreek then had kindergarten.

In the fall of 1968 Norwell was opened for all high school students of Northern Wells County.

Rockcreek has an enrollment of 352 this year, Lancaster approximately 760 & Ossian approximately 700 enrolled.

To the one room schools mentioned in the Lafayette Township article, we can add the names Crow, Kelsey and Reed. They were similar to the Union Twsp. schools in this writing. Other schools of this type in Union Twsp. were Cartwright, Splinter, Needmore, Betts, Caley, Buckeye, Prospect, & Bell. Buckeye & Bell are still standing.

Horsedrawn "Hack", made by W. Taylor Buggy Shop for Union Center School, Hulbert Miller, painter and Warren Taylor, owner. (About 1910).

A PIONEER SCHOOL

Most early schools were one room cabins with dirt floors. The windows were made from greased paper. If a snowball was accidentally thrown through the window, the next problem would be where to get another paper, as usually only one or two people in an entire neighborhood took newspapers at that time. A writing desk was made of a long plank, placed under the window and held up by two pegs in the wall.

Seats were logs split in two and set up on pegs. The fireplace was opposite the window and was built entirely of sticks and mud, and the black logs burned in it were carried in with hand spikes by the four largest boys. Among the modern conveniences were the outhouses and the well.

A typical school boy costume was pantaloons made of buckskin, his vest and cap was skin tanned with the hair on, while mocassins of deer skin ornamented his feet.

Some typical school sayings were; "school may go out" - recess time; "books, books" - come in and study; "toeing-the-mark" - come to the charcoal line on the floor, face the teacher, and read to him aloud. The 3 R's were usually the only subjects. The teachers were more than understanding, oftentimes doing the students problems for them. McGuffey's Reader and Arithmetic and Webster's Spelling Book, with pictures in the back illustrating morals, were common books in Indiana schools.

The chief public entertainment for the first 30 or 40 years of Indiana's existence was the celebrated "spelling - school". This resembled the present day spelling contest, only more game like contests were employed then. Most of the young people looked forward to this evening as much as Christmas, but not for the spelling so much as for another reason. Held during the winter months with snow an absolute must, they were allowed to go home by a round-a-bout way "a-sleighing with the girls".

A little later in time came the "singing - school", not unlike today's Christmas and Spring Musicals at school. The very first notes introduced to pioneer children were "sol", a round note, "la" a square note, "fa", a triangle note, and "mi", a diamond shaped one. When singing the scale, it ran like this; fa, sol, la, fa, sol, la, mi, fa. Song books used were the "Old Missouri Harmony" and Mason's "Sacred Harp". Not until 1850 did the round note system come into being, introduced by a Yankee singing-master; thus the scale do, re, mi, fa, so, la, ti, do. There was much more do-re-meing during these pioneer times than in later years, with all our new fangled musical instruments at hand. The "Carmina Sacra" was the pioneer round note music book which was regarded by old folks as being far too spiritless in comparison to the two mentioned before in this writing. Snow also was a must for the singing-school, as it too ended with the sleigh ride home.

This is probably Caley School - Wells County - Built in 1888
This was Carl Jacob's picture.

LATER SCHOOLS

In the late 1800's and early 1900's the one room cabin had given way to a one or two room brick building. A Zanesville child was sometimes sent off to higher school in Fort Wayne or Bluffton. Entertainment might have been a Japanese lantern lit class picnic, a buggy ride with friends, a trip to the "ole swimmin-hole" or maybe a class play. You either walked to school or went by horse and buggy.

In 1918 their parents might have "motored" them to the Bluffton's Grand Opera House for graduation. The date being August 10, when all Wells County Common Schools graduated together. Among the Zanesville area graduates were Beatrice Shoup, Vesta Smith, Jessie Prough, Virginia Walker, Lela Scott, Orma Hoopingarner, Sadonna Platt, Ellen Marie Weaver and Helen Weaver.

In 1939 Lafayette and Union offered 19 subjects, indoor plumbing and school buses. You might have enjoyed the entertainment of a school play "Hillbilly Courtship", given by the Seniors and directed by Floy Caley Tonkel and, oh yes, don't forget the annual Junior-Senior reception and the basketball games with that good ole Lafayette-Union rivalry. If you were lucky, you had a car of your own, but most of the time you had to use "Pop's", and be mighty careful with it too, because it was your family's only means of transportation. If you provided the car, the rest of the guys chipped in for the gas. You could take your girl to Zanesville for a soda (we don't have this convenience now) and have to choose between Shepler's and Farrel's Restaurant! For graduation, the girls liked a dark dress with dainty hand crocheted lace collars, and the boys put on their suits, white shirts and ties.

Later on during the 50's, typical school dress was middy length, a scarf around your neck, bobby socks, and saddle shoes. Chewing gum in your mouth, a bottle of pop, in your hand, and the tune of the latest record in your head. Oh we still stuck to the ballgame rivalry and the school plays and musicals, but Junior-Senior receptions sort of took a back seat to a week's trip to Washington and New York City. Some of the guys had practically new cars, and you guessed it, no money to go out on! So again the gas was split and lots of times you got stuck with double dating with your older brother (for more reasons than one). Twelve o'clock was late enough to be out as far as your parents were concerned and most kids accepted this. The majority of school kids minded their principals well because they were two of the best, Herschel Lesh and Herman Frantz. To be expelled from school was a disgrace to your family and friends. As in earlier years, the young couples had their favorite parking places! Jenkin's pit, Shoup's barn, Devil'sHollow, or any other secluded gravel road. Sometimes it was just fun to go park on the road behind the Ft. Wayne Drive-In Movie and watch the pictures with no sound. We almost forgot to mention another favorite entertainment for the area kids was driving their cars around the Bluffton Road Hall's or any other drive-in restaurant available. The current T.V. program (1976), Happy Days, depicts very well this era and "the Fonz", the typical idol of the teen set.

Now lets go on to the 1970's where a vast change has taken place. Almost every boy and many girls have their own cars, not old "junkers", but late models. Most high school kids have an after school job and "money to burn", as the saying goes. The drive-in restaurants have given way to dimly lit pizza parlors and McDonald's, and it's nothing to spend 15 or 20 bucks on a date. Now the school provides so many diversified entertainments and activities, you cannot decide what to go to. We have Senior and Junior Proms, basketball games, tennis matches, swimming meets, band and choir concerts, baseball, track, summer trips to Europe, canoeing trips to Canada, foreign language clubs, dramatics clubs, 4-H clubs, scout troops, gymnastic programs, parent-teacher groups and other things too numerous to mention. This is a far cry from the once or twice a year Spelling-School.

Now for graduation you rent a cap and gown; no need for a new suit. Your $18 pair of pre-washed jeans and a $20 wrinkled gauze shirt will look fine for graduation day. Anyway who is going to see your Mickey Mouse knee socks and your earth shoes under that long gown? And who will notice your new Afro hair style under that cap and tassel?

Average graduating classes are around 200 and around 125 subjects are offered to high school students, as compared to the 3 offered in pioneer times. You are now getting your high schooling in a completely modern air-conditioned building, which cost over three million dollars!

 SCHOOL SONG **

Cheer, Cheer, for old Union High
Send up the echoes clear to the sky
Send a roaring cheer on high
Shake down the thunder from the sky
What though the odds be great or small
Old Union High will win over all
While our loyal sons are marching
Onward to Victory- Rah! Rah! Rah!

One-one, Two-two, Three-three, U.C.!
